Juniata College is an independent, privately supported coeducational institution committed to providing a liberal arts education to qualified students regardless of sex, race, religion, creed, color or handicap. Its policies comply with requirements of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, and all other applicable federal, state and local statutes, regulations and guidelines.

President's Report 1975-1985

A DECADE OF PROGRESS

The 1985-86 academic year is now underway. It will see the last of the old three-term calendar and hopefully the beginning of a new and better curriculum. The year opened on a positive note with an excellent retention figure and, although our de novo freshman count was less than we expected, our overall enrollment is only nine less than last year (1167 to 1176). We are well within our projected budget. We look forward to a good year in academic, student life and in fund-raising.

As we begin the 1985-86 academic year at Juniata College, I look back on the ten previous years of my administration with pride and satisfaction. I believe you will agree, when you read the following record, that the College today is in a far stronger and more prestigious position than it was a decade ago. None of these positive facts could have appeared in the summary without the cooperation and tireless energies of most of my administrative staff and the alumni of Juniata, and the confidence and support of the majority of my trustees—in particular those of our chairman, Dr. Charles C. Ellis.

To these persons I am extremely grateful. My wife joins me in expressing our sincere appreciation to all.

I. FINANCES

In reviewing the following figures, let me point out that despite the increase in the general fee from approximately $4,000 per year (room, board and tuition) to this year's $9,900, Juniata's share of direct aid to students increased from $300,000 to $1,082,000 in 1984-85, and this year, 1985-86 will be $1,300,000. Federal grants and State grants went up sharply and more loan monies were made available through the GSL program than ever before in the College's history. In short, a Juniata education was and is today, quite affordable.

Another plus is in the percentage increases—salaries, wages and benefits—for our faculty and staff.

Net endowment income has grown 220%. New deferred gifts now amount to almost $1.5 million. The book value of the College has almost doubled and the internal debt of $1.4 million in 1975 has been completely eliminated. Each year we have balanced our budget since 1975-76 with surpluses as noted in the fund balance figures, especially in the allocated reserves.

Meticulous business practices, a sharp eye for savings, and an understanding of programs and quality are virtues attributed to few business managers, but Juniata is fortunate to have Bill Alexander who possesses all of these traits. (see Table 1.)

II. ACADEMICS

The reason for being a college rests with its claim to academic excellence. Juniata's deserved reputation as an outstanding college of the liberal arts and sciences continued unblemished during the past decade and, in some instances, as the following lists indicate, improved. In particular our SAT scores have increased. We have won the St. Andrew's Society of Philadelphia Andrew Much Scholarship for a year's study in Scotland three years out of seven in competition with Haverford, Swarthmore, Bryn Mawr, Penn and others. We continue to send 35% or more of our graduates to graduate and professional schools each year. Many win prestigious scholarships.

I am very proud of our international program in exchange with colleges and universities in Europe and Japan. These exchanges are in addition to the well-established Brethren Colleges Abroad Program. This fall we have 27 exchange students on campus from five foreign countries and 33 Juniata students are studying in Europe and Japan.

Our new academic dean, Dr. Joseph V. Stewart, promises to bring even more quality and prestige to our academic program.

A. Faculty

1. Maintained size of faculty in face of nation-wide enrollment decline
2. Maintained percentage of tenured faculty at 55%
3. Increased percentage of faculty with doctorate from 48.8% to 67%
4. Increased student/faculty ratio from 14.3% to 15.8%
5. Increased average faculty salary from $14,251 to over $30,000 per annum

B. Enrollment

1. Increased head count enrollment (Fall) from 1074 to 1273
2. Increased degree award from 235 to 275
3. Increased graduation rate to 69.1% (in 1982-83 as compared with 60.4% in 1979-80)

C. Admissions

1. Improved quality of publications dramatically twice since 1975
2. Established new Admissions House
3. Increased staff size and geographic coverage
4. Established admissions master plan
5. Increased combined SAT's from 975 to between 1040 and 1050; at the same time increased percentile level relative to all college freshmen
6. Increased mean class rank to 80% (from approximately 70%)
7. Increased market share of Pennsylvania high school graduates from 1.49% to 1.84% (in 1982-83)
8. Have been listed in the Peterson's Guide to Competitive Colleges

D. Academic Program

1. Created new awareness of international programs
  - a. developed international exchange programs with four foreign countries

- b. installed modern language laboratory
- c. established variety of speakers programs bringing international experts to campus
- d. established international internships
- 2. Re-emphasized the liberal arts
  - a. established the Dana Humanities Cluster which includes an increasingly-used art gallery
  - b. established a new position for an Art Historian
  - c. refurbished organ in Oller Auditorium
  - d. strengthened applied music program which enrolls over 200 students each year
  - e. established new Writing Center which was instituted in 1984-85
  - f. returned teaching of Freshman Composition to full-time faculty
- 3. Developed new academic facilities
  - a. new computer center
  - b. Early Childhood Education Center
  - c. case studies classroom
  - d. audio-visual laboratory
- 4. Established new academic programs
  - a. certification in early childhood
  - b. major in computer science
  - c. certification in social work

- 5. Reaccredited by Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools
- 6. Remain in the top 3% of liberal arts colleges in percentage of students who eventually receive doctorates; third in Pennsylvania.

E. Library

- 1. Completed major renovation of Beeghly Library including structural reinforcement
- 2. Consolidated science and main libraries
- 3. Implemented OCLC on-line services with cataloging (1978), interlibrary loan (1979), acquisitions (1984)
- 4. Moved to on-line bibliographic searching and subsequent cutback of paper copy of select indexes and abstracts
- 5. Improved library budget from $65,000 to $187,000

F. Financial Aid

- 1. Promoted development of campus job program that more efficiently allocates work study and institutional employment dollars to students both deserving and needy
- 2. Achieved close coordination between financial aid and admissions to achieve maximum use of financial aid dollars.
- 3. Acquired PHEAA terminal to achieve more efficient and effective allocation of aid dollars while reducing application fees to underclassmen

4. Increased total financial aid awarded to students by 250% while in the same period Juniata's contribution has risen 191%
5. Increased from only 30 to 33% the average discount per enrolled student from 1975 to 1984, when considering grant and scholarship aid alone
6. Increased student wages for juniors and seniors to encourage higher quality and productivity of student work and to increase student retention.

III. STUDENT SERVICES

The first two years of my administration were bleak ones for student services. Inexperienced and ineffective personnel dominated this important phase of college life. Policies were in disarray, student discipline was reminiscent of the late '60's and early '70's. Juniata student life was in the dark ages.

After several unsuccessful attempts to train the staff then employed, I finally appointed Dr. Arnold Tilden as Dean of Student Affairs. The following record speaks for itself and of the consummate skill of this excellent administrator.

A. Accomplishments in Residential Life

1. Inherited program with the following problems:
  - a. Excessive damage
  - b. Run-down facilities
  - c. Lack of staff training
  - d. Inactive disciplinary system
  - e. Disruptive social functions
  - f. Ambiguous policies
2. Through the Residential Life staff the following structural changes were instituted:
  - a. System of room inventories and billings for repairs meticulously followed
  - b. On-site supervision of undergraduate Resident Assistants provided by adult Residence Directors.
  - c. Duty schedules for residence staff
  - d. Effective pre-service and in-service training program
  - e. Weekly meetings conducted for Residence Directors who in turn conduct staff meetings for Resident Assistants
  - f. Expectations of residence staff in dining hall outlined
3. Student life policy revisions were made through the College governance system as follows:
  - a. A vandalism policy calling for restitution and heavy fines introduced in 1978
  - b. Second acts of vandalism result in expulsion

- c. Structure added to alcohol policy which is clearly understood and widely accepted
- d. Courtesy hours instituted to insure student rights to study or to sleep in residence halls
4. Educational and developmental programs introduced as follows:
  - a. Committee on Alcohol Study and Education (CASE) founded in 1977
    1. One of the first college committees of its type
    2. Residence staff trained in methods for dealing with alcohol-related issues
    3. Values clarification exercises incorporated into orientation program
    4. Programs have included an alcohol education fair; sessions on driving under the influence issue; and a peer-led intervention for students referred from the disciplinary systems who have behaved irresponsibly while under the influence
    5. Work of CASE recognized by Inter-Association Task Force on Alcohol Education with a grant and inclusion in the publication, Model Programs of Alcohol Education in Institutions of Higher Education
  - b. Room and corridor decoration program launched
    1. Designed to promote sense of ownership among resident students
    2. Underlying notion is that people don't abuse what they own
    3. Encouraged through "Room of the Year" competition
    4. Room decoration guidelines and suggestions distributed each year
    5. Corridor decoration programs enthusiastically received
    6. Projects improve appearance and promote sense of group cohesion
  - c. Residence Hall Association (RHAs) launched in 1980
    1. RHAs offer a form of self-governance in each living unit
    2. "Hall of the Year" competition inaugurated and serves as an effective incentive
    3. Faculty and Student Services Staff served as advisers or "Hall Associates"
    4. Frequent visits by staff members prescribed
    5. Seek to provide as many stimulating and attractive activities and programs as possible
5. Residence programming
  - a. Residence Hall Associations serve as effective programming vehicles
  - b. Residence Staff expected to offer programs of social or educational nature
  - c. Address developmental issues college students are

Academic Year	Students Involved in Disciplinary System	Number of Cases
77-78	28	20
78-79	80	—
79-80	86	33
80-81	104	57

facing; relationships, career development, assertiveness, study skills, etc.

- d. From a starting point of having virtually no programs, over 800 were offered in academic year 1984-85
6. Evidence of the impact of structural, policy, and program changes can be noted as follows:
  - a. With trained residence staff, the disciplinary system became more active as the above chart attests:
  - b. The development of a disciplinary network corresponds to a dramatic decline in residence repairs due to student damage
  - c. Reported residence repairs in 1980-81 were down by 82% compared to 1977-78 (52 compared to 296)
  - d. Survey data shows a high level of satisfaction with college life
  - e. Persistence to graduation rates have improved by nearly 7%

B. Accomplishments in Career Planning and Placement

1. Developed a comprehensive program of career planning and placement
  - a. Begins with pre-enrollment instrument authored by Buchanan and Tilden to help students identify appropriate vocational behaviors
  - b. Follow-up during summer orientation with Campus Counselor introducing students to personnel and resources
  - c. Peer Advisers trained to assist students in understanding selves in relation to educational and occupational fields
  - d. Internships and career fairs offered to advance levels of career development
  - e. Computer-assisted career planning module, SIGI, added in 1984; student use averages over 100 hours per month
  - f. Placement seminars on resume writing, interview techniques, job-seeking strategies, etc.
2. Student visits to the Career Planning and Placement Center average over 300 per week
3. Impressive record of post-graduate activities as follows:*

a. Percent enrolled in graduate or professional school

b. Percent employed

c. Percent employed, attending graduate or professional school

*Figures a, b, and c based on students registered with Placement Office which represents 75% of the graduating class.

**Data collection on Class of 1985 still in process.

C. Counseling

1. Full-time Campus Counselor appointed in fall of 1978 to offer career counseling, personal adjustment counseling, and academic support

2. Programs designed to advance self understanding and knowledge of occupational fields through Freshman Conference and system of Peer Advisers
3. "Strategies for Advancing Career Development in College Students" summarizes programs at Juniata and published in Pennsylvania Journal of Counseling
4. Outreach programs on topics such as life planning, assertiveness training, stress management, suicide prevention, death and dying, and study skills

D. Programming

1. Due to geographical isolation, students at Juniata are dependent upon campus for social, cultural and recreational stimulation
2. Survey by enrollment consultant in 1978 pointed to dissatisfaction with social activities among students
3. For academic year 1980, college funds for campus programming increased five fold
4. A new Center Board structure adopted to encourage broader participation in planning and promoting programs
5. With new structure and added resources, programs improved both quantitatively and qualitatively
6. Cumulative attendance to 78 Center Board programs was 19,525 in 1979-80; following restructuring and adding resources, those figures in 1980-81 were 107 and 31,838 respectively.
7. Steering Committees established which successfully developed strategies promoting responsible behavior for college-wide social events.
8. Interest and involvement in traditional campus events of Mountain Day, Homecoming and Madrigal Dinner markedly improved
9. The number of clubs and organizations has increased from 18 to 40 over a seven year period

E. Religious Life Programming has grown incrementally

1. Meal for CROP in 1978 raised $1,200 for World Hunger Relief
2. Success of CROP has improved consistently each year with $2,300 being raised in 1984
3. Efforts to meet spiritual need of Jewish and Roman Catholic students began in 1978
4. Newman and Jewish Student Associations founded that year and are now active
5. Catholic chaplain assigned to Juniata in 1984-85
6. Campus Ministry Board of 12 students formed in 1979 to advise Campus Minister in assessment of spiritual needs and program development
7. Regular weekly worship services begun in 1980
8. Bible study groups started in various residence halls in 1980

9. Participation in Deputation Club has increased dramatically
  - a. Thirteen visits to churches by Deputation teams in 1979-80
  - b. Compares to 34 visits by Deputation teams in 1983-84
10. SNAP (Saturday Night Alternative Plan) initiated through Campus Ministry Board in 1983
  - a. SNAP sponsors Saturday social functions without alcoholic beverages
  - b. SNAP now a funded subcommittee of Center Board
11. By 1984-85 the campus averages two religious activities each day
12. Campus Ministry Intern assists with expanded programming in 1984-85

F. Security

1. A "night watchman" service offered prior to 1979 with little training or recognition
2. Commitment made to protect students and facilities by upgrading services
  - a. Emphasis on training
    1. Juniata model subject for publication in security magazine
    2. Security personnel invited to other campuses in consulting capacity as a result of improvements and programs at Juniata
  - b. Security vehicle purchased; necessary to patrol 100 acre property and respond to emergency calls
  - c. Office relocated to promote accessibility
  - d. Modern radio equipment purchased

- e. Student assistants employed as dispatchers, enhancing image and promoting understanding
- f. Seven day a week and 24 hours a day coverage currently provided

G. Athletics and Recreation

1. Enrollment survey in 1978 pointed to student dissatisfaction with recreational opportunities
2. Funding for intramural programming increased
3. Intramural activity extraordinarily high (85% compared to 49% at other colleges like Juniata, ACT study)
4. Level of intramural participation has increased from 66% in 1975-76
5. For women, the following intercollegiate sports have been added since 1976: volleyball, softball, cross country and track.
6. Seven intercollegiate sports available for women compared to three prior to 1976
7. Correspondingly, participation in intercollegiate sports by women has more than doubled
8. For men, soccer has been added as an intercollegiate sport
9. On a club basis, swimming and lacrosse have been added for men and women

- H. Retention Strategies
1. Understanding relationships among self, fields of study and occupation related to persistence (Beal and Noel, 1980)
    - a. Career planning and placement programs bolstered with additional staff and resources
    - b. Peer Advising Program matches new students with upperclass students by proposed fields of interest
    - c. Vocational test interpretation and computer-assisted (SIGI) career planning exercises designed to support and advance career planning
    - d. Peer advising groups visit career resource center

- e. "Juniata College Career Planning Survey" developed by Buchanan and Tilden taken by pre-freshmen
- f. Follow-up exercises conducted during Summer Orientation
2. Major finding of Astin's study Preventing Students from Dropping Out of College (1976) was that students who are involved persist
  - a. Involvement promoted through annual Activities Fair when campus organizations recruit new members
  - b. Residence Hall Associations involve students in planning of programs
  - c. Financial aid strategies developed to involve more students in on-campus jobs (working is positively related with retention when limited to ten hours a week and when job is on campus, Astin, 1976)
  - d. Expanded intercollegiate, club and intramural programs involve more students
3. Drop-out prone students are characterized by having low academic achievement (Lenning, 1980)
  - a. Study skills seminars offered in residence halls
  - b. Students on academic probation referred to Campus Counselor for academic support counseling
  - c. Baldrige Reading and Study Skills course offered and required for students with marginal academic credentials
  - d. Quiet hours for study enforced in residence halls
4. Effective orientation programs positively correlated with persistence (Beal and Noel, 1980)
  - a. Summer orientation program, two days in duration, introduced
  - b. Parallel programming for parents and students well received
  - c. Sessions address major social and academic concerns
  - d. Participation by new students routinely over 80% of entering class
  - e. Apprehensions of both students and parents relieved
  - f. Early commitment to college established
  - g. Fall Orientation focuses on pressing adjustment needs of new students
5. Exit interview system developed to monitor reasons why students leave the college and to identify trends
6. Students who entered Juniata in 1976 (60.80%) graduated four years later
7. By comparison, 67.3% class entering in 1979 graduated in 1983
8. Campus-wide retention committee appointed in fall of 1984 with reduction in attrition of 32% (spring term '84 to fall term '84 compared to spring term '85 to fall term '85)

I. Co-Curricular Transcript (CCT)

1. Students learn and grow from out-of-class experiences
2. CCT provides structure for experiences
3. CCT serves as a record of participation and related skill development
4. Leadership seminars offered to improve skill development
5. Topics have included: leadership styles, goal setting, motivation, rewards, communication, conflict resolution and dynamics of organization
6. Twelve students involved on pilot basis in 1982-83; 82 in 1983-84; and 120 in 1984-85
7. CCT becomes part of credential file in placement office
8. Favorable comments offered by prospective employers and graduate school admissions personnel
9. Article entitled, "A New Approach to the Co-Curricular Transcript," published in the July 1985 Journal of College Student Personnel

IV. DEVELOPMENT

The giving record follows, but figures do not explain the organizational work which caused these numbers to be translated into the reality of dollars.

Nor do the dollars explain the motive for giving. "People give to people." This phrase is employed in our deferred giving program. But people also give to a memory, a positive experience, a sentiment and, yes, for a tax break.

Foundations and corporations give to a college's name and reputation, a project, an idea. Juniata has all of these forces at work for its benefit.

All of these reasons for giving are found in the accounting of these past ten years. Total giving amounts to $13.5 million. But pledges are still outstanding, bringing the total to about $17 million.

In the area of development, one points with pride to the Pooled Income Fund and Planned Giving Program, our Annual Support Fund and other generosities of our alumni and friends, and to our capital campaigns which have produced the Dana Humanities Cluster and the Kennedy Sports + Recreation Center, and the funds allocated for renovations, computers, program equipment, scholarships and endowment.

Our development team is an outstanding one—but special praise goes to Dr. Clayton N. Pheasant for his vision, his organizational skills, and for his tireless energy.

12. Total giving to the College has increased for the past six consecutive years. Average giving during this six-year period has been $1,530,645.
13. Increase from:

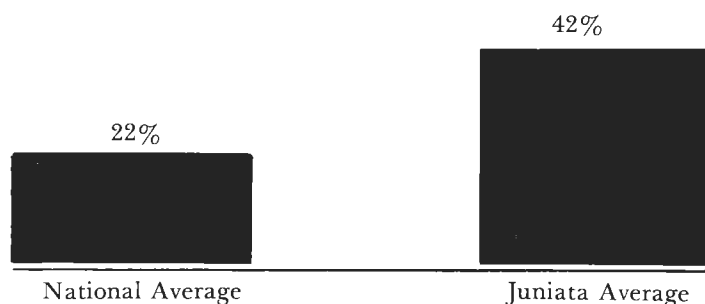

Year	Percent
1979 to 1980	2%
1980 to 1981	26
1981 to 1982	7
1982 to 1983	2
1983 to 1984	6

14. Percentage of alumni giving (see above chart)
15. Received gift of property from Westvaco Corporation in spring of 1985 valued at $1,078,000 which made the 1984-85 giving year highest on record at about $2.5 million
16. Reached a $275,000 Annual Support Fund Goal in 1985—$25,000 more than previous record

B. Selected measure of quality

1. A greater percentage of entering freshmen at Juniata with aspirations for advanced degrees—doctorates, medical or law degrees. Juniata's percentage is 42%; national norms for four year colleges is 22%

Freshmen with Aspirations for Advanced Degrees

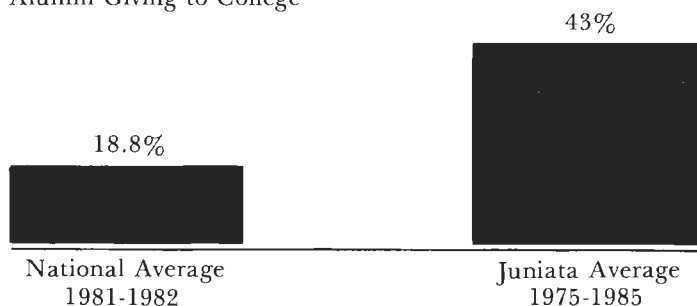

2. In 1981, 86% of our students indicated that they were satisfied or very satisfied with Juniata. The national average for private colleges was 74%

Students Expressing Satisfaction with College

3. Over the last decade, the percentage of alumni giving at Juniata has averaged 43%. By comparison, the Council for Financial Aid to Education reported that in 1981-82 alumni giving averaged only 18.8% nationally, the highest level since 1967-68.

Alumni Giving to College

V. Conclusion

It may be enough to say this is the end of the report. But it is a little frightening to me that ten years can be condensed into a few pages. Of course there have been rough spots and difficult times. Of course things did not always go smoothly or even successfully. There have been mistakes of judgment, of policy and most of all mistakes about people. But all in all, these have been successful years for our College. I hope this summary will make you, as alumni and trustees, as proud of Juniata as I am to have been its president during these interesting and exciting ten years of her history.

Until June of 1986, my retirement date, I remain

Sincerely yours,

Frederick M. Binder
Veritas Liberat

- In a study by Franklin and Marshall College based on data provided by the Commission on Human Resources of the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences, Juniata College ranked 82nd among 867 private undergraduate institutions in the nation in absolute number of graduates who earned Ph.Ds between 1920 and 1980.
- A subsequent study by Juniata found that the College ranks 17th nationally and third in Pennsylvania among the same institutions in the percentage of alumni with Ph.Ds—6.03%.

FOUNDERS CLUB

Since its origin in 1939, the Founders Club has had as its special mission the development of leadership gifts which are essential to the advancement of the educational effectiveness of Juniata College. In 1984-85, the Founders Club claimed some 1050 members in four categories of annual membership: The Presidents Circle, open to those who contribute $1,000 or more; the Patrons Circle, for those who contribute $500 to $999; the Associates Circle, $250 to $499; and the Builders Circle, $100 to $249.

The College recognizes with pride the significance of support generated by Founders Club membership. The example set by these dedicated men and women not only helps to assure directly Juniata's present educational excellence, but inspires others — including foundations, corporations and government — to realize that support of Juniata is a sound investment. You are cordially invited to join these other Juniatians as members of the Founders Club, an organization held in special esteem by all who are associated with the College.

The Trustees, Faculty, Alumni and Students of

Juniata College

Hereby give public expression to their Profound Gratitude and Esteem for

Those who have established
 Significant Endowments
 in Support of Teaching and Cultural Events

These endowments enable Juniata to emphasize teaching as the essential element in liberal arts education. The quality of learning by Juniata students is advanced for all the years to come by these benefactions.

The Herbert A. and Marjorie F. Miller Endowment in Support of Teaching in Economics and Business Administration and a second major gift to purchase books and journals in these two fields of study.

The Edith B. Wertz Endowment for Support of Cultural Events.

The J. Omar Good Visiting Distinguished Professorship of Evangelical Christianity

Joseph R. and Jane S. Good Endowment in Support of Scholarships.

Dr. John C. and Elizabeth E. Baker Endowment in Support of Peace Studies.

W. Newton and Hazel A. Long Professorship in History.

The Board of Trustees has approved a plan for the recognition of major endowment gifts. Recognizing that liberal arts education depends upon sound teaching, the Trustees, give special recognition to gifts of $100,000 or more. These may be direct gifts, bequests or gift annuities in which the actual amount available for support of teaching through endowment in perpetuity is of the amount stipulated. These major gifts are recognized here, through presentation of special citations to the donors, and through bronze plaques which are placed in the classroom areas occupied by the designated departments.

GIFT ANNUITY AND POOLED INCOME AGREEMENTS—$124,122.13

By means of deferred gifts, friends of Juniata are able to support the College through gift annuities and life income contracts. In these plans the donor receives a lifetime income with distinct tax advantages. During the fiscal year 1984-85, a total of $124,122.13 was contributed by the following persons:

Dilling, Miss Susanna L.
 Foster, Mrs. Eleanor R.
 Good, Dr. Joseph R.
 Greenwood, Mrs. Maud E.
 Kennedy, Mr. Edwin L.
 Neff, Dr. Wilfred B.
 Oller, Dr. and Mrs. Jack E.
 Thornbury, Colonel Sedgley

FRIENDS OF THE JUNIATA LIBRARY

College constituents who have a special interest in library development support the Friends of Juniata Library organization. During 1984-85, persons named below made contributions to assure the continued strength of the general collections housed in the Beeghly Library. Members listed are in one or more of the following three categories: contributors of cash; donors of books appraised for gift-in-kind credit; those who gave books but did not request appraisal. As the Libraries' total collection approaches 200,000 volumes, the Friends' organization is invaluable to the assurance of sound quality and steady growth.

The Tragedy of the Welfare Commons

by Dr. Duane F. Stroman
Professor of Sociology and recipient of the annual Beachley Distinguished Professor Award

In trying to prepare for this day all I could think of at first was that it would be a great day to call in sick. But I checked our faculty manual and I found we get no accumulation of sick days. Otherwise, I could have taken off the whole term. Rather our departmental colleagues are to cover for us in case of illness. But that didn't seem fair. Professor Reilly is on sabbatical. Professor Radis is new and Professor Heberling has been through this once, except as the second Beachly Distinguished Professor he got the prize without the wonderful privilege of talking to 900 people who come here out of either necessity or high hopes for a prize or an early lunch. I was surprised when President Binder called my name for the prize last year.

In 1968, Garrett Hardin, a Professor of Human Ecology at the University of Colorado at Santa Barbara, wrote an essay entitled the "Tragedy of the Commons," which was published in Science. In this particular essay he was looking at the population problem - a world population growing at a rate faster than our ability to adequately feed, clothe and shelter the newborn. He states "the population problem has no technical solution; it requires a fundamental extension of morality."

Many of us who work in the disciplines of the natural and social sciences often think that there is a technical solution to some problem when in fact the solution to some problems requires the development of new moral norms. I will first briefly illustrate this idea with Garrett's analysis of the world population problem. I will then go on to illustrate this principle in the area of human welfare.

But first we need to understand the concept of the commons to enable us to see what Garrett means by the "tragedy of the commons." I'm not certain about the exact historical origin of the idea or practice of the commons, but in early England it meant a common pasture open to all. But today it can be pictured as those things we all share—the air we breathe is not owned by individuals but is common to all—owned by all. Our national parks and forests are one form of commons. And, in a sense, so are the very resources of the earth.

Here's how the tragedy of the commons develops. Picture a pasture open to all herdsman. It is expected that each herdsman will try to feed and keep as many cattle on the commons as is possible. If there aren't many herdsman and the commons is large this may work for many centuries. But there finally comes a day of reckoning when there are too many herdsman for the common. (Incidentally, I'm not trying to be sexist is using the term herdsman; I just find the old usage simpler to say than herdspersons or herdspeople.) Now assume with me that each herdsman is a rational human being who wants to maximize his gain. Each asks himself what is the utility of me adding one more cow to my herd? Each herdsman will find a positive utility and a negative utility by incrementing his herd by one. The positive component is that one more animal can be raised and sold and so the positive utility here is nearly one. (It isn't quite one because there are some costs in acquiring and raising the animal.) But the negative component is the additional overgrazing created by one more animal and thereby its slight reduction in size and worth. The negative utility is only a fraction of minus one however. So, adding up the positive and negative utilities, the rational herdsman will conclude that it will be more profitable if he adds another cow to his herd. But this is the conclusion that every rational herdsman sharing the commons reaches and therein is the tragedy. Each herdsman is locked into a system of thought that argues that he should increase his herd, perhaps without limit; yet the commons is limited. If each herdsman pursues his individual gain, there won't be enough food for any of the animals. The "invisible hand" that Adam Smith described in The Wealth of Nations, whereby each individual who pursues his own gain promotes the public interest, does not appear to work where there are limited resources.

Now scientists may try to find a technical solution to this problem—finding new commons, breeding new herds that grow fast while eating less food, breeding new grasses that yield more protein, fertilizing the crops to grow more and bigger grass in a given area. And these technical solutions can help for a while even though there is a cost in them. But, finally, the tragedy of the commons emerges - there is only a limited commons - the earth's resources are finite.

Thus the herdsman, realizing some or many will die can try other solutions - kill one another or the herds of other herdsman. But this will lead to a lot of uncertainty and lower the quality of life in many ways. What they need, says Garrett, is a fundamental extension of morality. They need to contract together to limit the growth of herdsman and/or their herds. They must contract together to limit their individual freedoms in pursuing individual gains or they all will suffer and die.

And so the tragedy of the commons can be extended to other areas also. There is no final technical solution to the world population problem. Farming the oceans, raising better crops by breeding heartier and more protein rich plants and other such measures may enlarge the population carrying capacity of the earth substantially, but it is not a final solution. The final solution must be a moral one—that is one where people develop agreed upon constraints to reach zero or near zero population growth. Too many people wanting a high and certainly desirable standard of living, will undoubtedly lead to air pollution and acid rain and water pollution that in the long run may even reduce the carrying capacity of the earth.

Now I would like to take Hardin's idea—about there being a class of problems for which there is no technical solution but only a moral solution—and apply it to another problem area—human welfare. The particular area of human welfare that I will look at is poverty.

Poverty can be defined in either absolute or relative ways. Starting in 1959 the federal government came up with an absolute definition of poverty that said if a family of a given size (be it one or eight) has less than so many dollars of income in a given year, it is in poverty. In 1984, 15% of all Americans, or about 1 out of 6.7 Americans were poor. Some are just at the poverty line and not too badly off, while others in this group have almost no income and are in dire straights. These are often the street people who fill the soup cafeterias of philanthropic agencies and sleep on the warm air exhaust grates of subways.

Relative poverty involves a psychological and/or social comparison process of those who are worse off in comparison to those who are better off. A lot of people feel poor compared to others. And 49.99% of the population are worse off than 50.01% of the population. If one defines poverty in the relative sense of being at 45% or less of the median income, this approach produces numbers and percentages of poor similar to the government's absolute definition of poverty.

Now is there a technical solution or only a moral solution to the problem of poverty—the problem of inadequate food, shelter and clothing for some 35 million Americans? This is a gray area because the solutions overlap and one can view the problem through a variety of colored glasses called assumptions, perspectives and theories about poverty. The technical approach focuses on looking at the roots of the problem and trying to provide solutions to the problem by technical means. So people who are poor are often found to be undereducated, undermotivated, undertrained and unwise in their spending, saving, living and reproduction patterns. They are blamed for their poverty. And there is some truth to this approach, and the consequent solutions of opening up channels of education, job training, remotivation and financial counseling may help some of these people.

But there are a class of people who are poor who are relatively blameless in their poverty. There are those unable to work from birth on because of crippling disabilities. There are those unable to work because of crippling accidents at work, at home or on the road or who have the bad fortune to be ravaged by diseases they didn't want. There are some who are too old to work.

And over half the poor either work at jobs full or part-time at minimum wage rates that leave them in poverty or want to work but there is no work for them. This half of the poor is often blamed for their poverty even though they live in a capitalist economic system that cannot consistently provide work for them.

The moral solution to this problem is to develop a moral compact among people that says poverty is a common problem. It is often a social system's problem that should not be blamed on the individual if in fact he is blameless for his poverty. The solution is simple in theory but most difficult to carry out once a system of structured inequality exists in a society.

John Rawls, in his book A Theory of Justice argues that people could rationally develop a just society if they operated under "a veil of ignorance." Under the veil of ignorance they wouldn't know their own social or economic position but would construct a system that would be fair to all in a distributive sense and yet maintain motivation by having higher rewards for those who contributed most to maintaining and improving the totality of benefits of a system. If we could use this system it would produce greater equality of results.

In recent years, I think we have moved away from a moral solution to the problem of poverty and even reduced our efforts at technical solutions. Those in positions of power, particularly at the legislative and executive lines, have tended to blame the poor for their plight rather than seeing it as a systems problem. If our economic system has the defect of not being able to employ all who want work, some are victims of the system not losers in the sense of unmotivated unskilled workers who don't give a darn. Even if all adult citizens had Ph.D.s and high motivation and good skills and good health, we would still have unemployment and poverty.

We are a nation of extensive affluence. Yet in 1980 12% were living in poverty—one out of nine people. The people in poverty are disproportionally children and women and some unemployed males. If one adds minority status to this, the poor are even more disproportionately black, hispanic and Indian women and children. Even with a growth in affluence, the amount of poverty increased from 12% in 1980 to 15% in 1984—about 7 million more people were pushed into poverty in this four year period.

Why? A short analysis shows two major causes: - First, a cutback in welfare policies in the sense of either not allowing them to grow in relation to need or pure cutbacks. And second, since 1980 we have six new tax laws that have slowly and perceptibly shifted the tax burden from the rich to the poor and middle class. I won't take the time to prove that case. The poor have no lobby of significance compared to the well-off.

When Reagan asked voters if they were better off than four years earlier he was appealing primarily to their selfish instincts not to their altruism for a system that deals equitably to all.

What we need, I believe, is a new moral commitment to a system of economic justice—a system of fair taxation and welfare that meets fundamental human needs. In a pastoral letter released in November of 1984, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops stated "We believe the level of inequality in income and wealth in our society...must be judged morally unacceptable." The richest 20% of our society receives more income than the bottom 70%. The bottom 20% get just 4% of the income.

I certainly would not propose income equality. I believe that inequality is a strong motivator and would remain even if we developed a sufficiently generous system to wipe out poverty. We have all sorts of tax loopholes and subsidies for the middle and upper classes. We subsidize farmers for not growing food. We might be in real trouble if we subsidized automakers for not producing unneeded cars or educational institutions for not educating each student that they could expand to accommodate. Federal Programs to increase the housing stock for the poor have been drastically slashed in recent years. But, for the middle class and up who are home buyers, they can deduct their interest and this costs more than four times as much in lost revenues than the federal government spends on housing for the poor. Our tax laws benefit primarily the well off. A 1979 study found that the 5.3% of the population who earned over $30,000 that year, got 66% of the total savings in tax breaks. This is far more than enough to wipe out poverty. We don't call them losers, or welfare chiselers. They are beneficiaries of a tax system created by people like themselves to benefit themselves.

The national conference of Bishops called U.S. poverty a "scandal." "In our opinion," they said, "the distribution of income and wealth in the U.S. is so inequitable that it violates the minimum standards of distributive justice."

In February of this year, The Physicians Task Force on Hunger, working out of Harvard University, estimated that 20 million suffer from what they called a "growing epidemic" of chronic hunger. They place most of the blame on changes in federal policy. A huge outlay on strategic weapons that has risen 305% between 1980 and 1986 compared to slow increases or cutbacks in human services has pushed another 3% or 7 million people into poverty and some into hunger. The physician's task force pointed out that hunger could be "eradicated in six months" for less than $7 billion or the cost of two nuclear powered aircraft carriers. But we have switched our national priorities to an arms buildup that will not end in 1988. Once weapons systems procurements are set in motion, they will last well into the 1990s.

There is no technical fix to poverty. To achieve the reduction or eradication of poverty we must first have a change in our morality. The tragedy of the commons in this regard is that we are currently moving away from a moral social compact to care for all of us to one that emphasizes individualism and self-aggrandizement. And it works to promote motivation for 85%, while promoting poverty for the rest. I believe we need to reverse this tragedy of the commons where all are eventually hurt because we don't understand our interdependence. To Juniata students, I hope your liberal education at Juniata will enable you to ask more than what's in it for me. I hope you ask also, what's in it for the common good of all men. What is your vision of a good society? Is it one where people must starve in the midst of affluence? I hope not. Rather, I hope you envision and will work for a society that cares for that minority of poor inasmuch as any one of us, under the right circumstances, could be there.
